SENATE COMPROMISES BY CALLING ST. PATRICK'S SCRAP A DRAW

Freshmen Use Truck to Carry Flag Into Tree Surrounded by Sophomores.

NICOL MANAGES TO KEEP FRESHMAN FLAG IN TREE
FOR REQUIRED LENGTH OF TIME.

Sophomores Fail to Find Headquarters of 1926 on Preceding Night.

This year's St. Patrick's Day Scrap, held on Saturday, March 17, was a rather unusual one, in that after much discussion the Senate finally declared the scrap a draw. This is the first time for several years that such a decision has been given regarding a St. Patrick's Day Scrap. However, the general opinion on the campus seems to be that the Freshman class deserves the credit for winning this year's traditional battle.

The activities which always precede the scrap started unusually early this year, because of the initiative and life shown by the Freshmen. On the evening of Thursday, March 15, the Freshmen placed on the roof of Middle Jarvis Dormitory a large white banner containing their class numerals in black. The presence of this banner was soon noticed by a few members of the class of '25, who decided that it should be removed without delay. After making sure that no hostile Freshmen were lurking around, one of these enterprising Sophomores climbed onto the roof of Middle Jarvis, and took down the offensive banner. For the remainder of the night the Sophomores were greatly alarmed because of their uncertain knowledge of the plans of the Freshmen.

The next morning the student body awoke to find a large "26" blazing forth from the roof of the Library. It had been painted there sometime during the previous night in spite of the watchful Sophomores. Before chapel several Sophomores succeeded in mounting the Library roof and blurring the hated numerals to a certain extent, but the Freshmen had accomplished their purpose. All day Friday the Sophomores were more or less in a daze because of worry over what the Freshmen might do next. But the day passed without any further excitement.

By five o'clock Friday afternoon all Freshmen, eligible to take part in the affair, left the campus, in accordance with the rules established by the Senate.

The activities on Friday night were helped by a hard rain during the first part of the night and later by a light snow. Both classes used motor trucks as a means of efficient transportation. The Freshmen posted a large number of posters, containing their class numerals, on most of the streets downtown, but the Sophomores at first did a rather thorough job of tearing them down. Consequently, the Freshmen delayed putting up the remainder of their posters until much later in the night. Several of these posters may still be seen on the streets of Hartford.

The Freshmen succeeded in capturing three husky Sophomores, while the Sophomores caught about twelve of the opposing yearlings. T. W. Jones, a Sophomore, is reported to have captured three Freshmen single handed. When this clever Sophomore saw a stray Freshman wandering about a street downtown, he disguised himself in a Freshman cap, motioned for the innocent and obedient

COLLEGE COURSE FOR DIPLOMATS

Special Scholarships Are Announced by New York University Under Terms of Bequest from Late Ambassador F. C. Penfield.

New York, March 12—American young men who look forward to careers as ambassadors, foreign ministers or other representatives of their government abroad may now be trained for such a career the same as for the law, medicine or any other profession, according to an announcement recently made by New York University. The announcement makes public the fact that scholarships established at New York University by the late Ambassador Frederic Courtland Penfield are now operative and will be awarded to candidates whose qualifications best indicate a fitness for careers in the foreign service.

Frederic Courtland Penfield died last summer after a long career in the diplomatic service which began in the consul general's office in Cairo and ended in Vienna as United States Ambassador where, through the trying period of the World War, he handled the interests, not only of his own country, but of half a dozen other powers at war with Austria. His experiences taught him that, while what is known as "shirt sleeves diplomacy" may serve very well on occasion, there is also a need for the trained diplomat. This realization found expression in his will in a bequest of $80,000 to New York University for the founding of what should be known as "Penfield Scholarships" for training American youth "in diplomacy, international affairs and belles-lettres."

These scholarships, which are in part the realization of a plan long advocated by Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, close friend of Ambassador Penfield, for a school of international affairs at New York University, will be awarded by Dean Earle B. Babcock of the Graduate School of New York University. Two of these scholarships for $1,000 each will be awarded to applicants holding the master's degree from an approved college or university or who expect to receive the degree in June, 1923, who plan to devote their entire time to study during the academic year 1923-24.

In addition to the two $1,000 scholarships, there will be two of an annual value of $800, three of an annual value of $500 and several minor scholarships. College students who desire to participate in these scholarships should communicate with Dean Earle B. Babcock of the Graduate School of New York University, 100 Washington Square, East, New York City, giving him a statement of their academic preparation.

SPANISH MAIN SUMMER CRUISE

Students, Teachers and Others
Will Make Tour of Caribbean
Sea Under Guidance of N. Y.
University Professors.

New York, March 20—Cruising the Spanish Main in search, not of golden doubloons and pieces of eight, but of nuggets of knowledge, is the latest thing in educational novelties. Such a cruise has been arranged by Dean A. Wellington Taylor of the Graduate School of Business Administration of New York University. It will follow the wake of the bold buccaneers who have tinged successive ways of juvenile literature with carmine, but it will not be made in one of the "low black hulls" so dear to the Captain Kidd school of fiction, the Pantores, one of the Great White Fleet of the United Fruit Company line of steamers having been obtained to carry the tourists.

It is expected that a large part of the company will be made up of college students, who will be able to combine an interesting and instructive vacation with an opportunity to gain from two to four points toward a college degree. New York University has consented to award these college credits, because it regards the tour of exceptional educational value. Such of the tourists as seek such college credits will be required to attend lectures given en route by Dean Taylor and by Prof. Paul J. Salvatore of the Department of Spanish of the Stevens Institute of Technology. These lectures will deal with the economic, political and historical phases of the countries visited. School teachers and business men interested in commercial conditions in the Caribbean will also be among the tourists.

The Pantores, which will be the home of the tourists throughout the cruise, will leave New York July 21 and will make its first stop at Havana four days later. The Cuban metropolis and adjacent points of interest will be visited, following which a three-day cruise over summer seas will put the tourists in the Canal Zone. There will be a trip to the Pacific end of the Panama Canal and then a run up the Central American coast to Port Limon, Costa Rica. A special train will take the tourists to San Jose, the capital of Costa Rica, a climb of 6,000 feet in less than one hundred miles. The tourists will be back in New York August 9.

BATES RECENTLY QUARANTINED

Bates College in Maine has recently reopened after a strict quarantine on account of a scarlet fever epidemic. The college activities, classes, and regular routine were abandoned for a three weeks' period. The usual schedule has now been returned to.

At the last meeting of the Interfraternity Council the Phi Kappa Chapter of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity submitted its resignation from the Interfraternity Council, because of a dislike for the existing rushing agreement established by the Interfraternity Council.

The resignation submitted to the Interfraternity Council by the local chapter of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity follows:

The Interfraternity Council of Trinity College.

Gentlemen:

Whereas, we believe the old plan of rushing more beneficial to the college and its members, more to the best interests of the several fraternities, than is the present system.

And on account of the fact that we would like to see greater activity on the part of the various units, toward getting better fraternity material to come to Trinity.

And finally because we can see more harm than good arising from our present system.

We do hereby present to the Interfraternity Council, our resignation, this resignation, in accordance with the constitution, to take effect three months from today, or June, the sixth, nineteen hundred and twenty-three.

Very respectfully yours,

THE PHI KAPPA CHAPTER OF ALPHA DELTA PHI.

The Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi, it is reported, is heartily in favor of the Interfraternity Council and the work accomplished by that body, but the chapter does not agree with the rushing system now in effect. As the most important work of the Interfraternity Council is done in connection with rushing, the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity has deemed it best to withdraw from the Council.

Present Rushing Agreement.

The present rushing agreement has been used for the last three years, and contains the following rules:

1—No man shall be pledged to any Fraternity until he shall have been an undergraduate at Trinity College for fourteen days.

2—(a) Each house shall entertain those Freshmen with whom it has had correspondence, or who have friends in that house before introducing them to other crowds.

(b) The chairman of the rushing committee of each house shall be responsible for seeing that every Freshman is introduced at every other house.

3—(a) At 5 o'clock on the last day of the no-pledging period, New Men will gather in Alumni Hall. At that time each Fraternity shall issue dinner invitations to those undergraduates it desires to bid.

(b) Each man receiving an invitation must return all bids within an hour after he has obtained his invitation. The acceptance shall be deposited in a box to be placed in some position designated by the Interfraternity Council; any unsigned invitation

IT ALL DEPENDS.

The "Amherst Student" has been publishing recently a series of letters from alumni on the value of extra-curricula activities. These have, for the most part, strongly supported the average undergraduate theory that participation in these activities proves of considerable value in later life. In a recent issue the following letter is printed. In it a sophomore takes violent issue with the alumni, in terms which are, to say the least, strong.

To the Editor of the "Amherst Student:"

I have been reading with great amusement the letters of Alumni to us, on activities. Realizing that it isn't worth much, may I express the opinion of a mere sophomore?

I haven't attended a basketball or hockey game, a soccer game or a swimming meet since I've been in college and never inquire "How'd the game come out?" I keep up the farcical habit of shouting "hello" at men who give me a pain and men whom I give a worse pain, as little as is possible under our "democratic spirit" regime. I do not keep a memory book or buy the "Olio" so that some day I might find solace in bringing up fond recollections that were "midst the golden haze of college days." I won't wax sentimental about leaving the dear familiar sights, the old associations and the days of jolly comradeship when I graduate. I do not study for a Phi Beta Kappa key and keep happily out of all competitions. I don't think I'll make "Scarab." I am a Pure Non-entity.

In fact all I do in this place is a great deal of reading and what the sons of Amherst call "moping." As for the charges in your editorial last week, I don't read the "Saturday Evening Post", "Lord Jeff" and "trashy novels" and God forbid that I ever read the "Amherst Writing" again. I don't know how to play bridge and don't go to movies more than three times a week, and wouldn't if I had the money. Nevertheless, your editorial showed an "independent intelligence." And I know I've convinced you that I'm self-conceited as well as self-deceiving.

My greatest debt to Amherst lies in her showing me how ridiculous are the popular beliefs regarding the benefit of extra-curriculum activities and the beautiful comradeships and associations one makes at college.

I have heard at least ten Alumni warn "the more you put into Life the more you will get out of it." At least ten have said to me, "Industry and Thrift spell Success." At least a hundred that college gives us an appreciation of the "bigger, better, finer things of Life."

And then some ass with a Phi Beta Kappa key and half a dozen major letters, who is selling horseblankets says, "You men will some day go out as leaders of men. It is the men from the colleges that form the very backbone of our modern civilization. I want to state right here and now that to be a Success in this Life you must grasp every opportunity for service to the community." I'd gladly see him shot.

For myself I find the things that are of Value in books and "moping." Amherst gives one four years to Read and "Mope" and for that I'm deeply indebted to Amherst.

On first thought this sophomore is likely to be catalogued as a mere crack-brained radical, on second thought he may be considered a heroic figure who fearlessly expresses independent thought, but on mature deliberation he turns out to be a very one-sided peg hopelessly attempting to rest comfortably in an almost round hole. American colleges are far from ideal, but they still conform much more closely to Twentieth Century ideals than does this assertive youth.

Much of the contents of the letter can be discarded as either simple verbiage or the self-satisfied assertiveness of a budding mind which is just beginning to realize its powers of independent thought. Still more can be attributed to a desire to arouse comment and condemnation in his college community. But there are one or two kernels of real thought which make the communication valuable. Of these the last two sentences stand out. "For myself I find the things that are of Value in books and 'moping.'" Amherst gives one four years to Read and 'Mope' and for that I'm deeply indebted to Amherst."

It is an undeniable fact that modern American college students do not read for "things that are of Value" except the required collateral reading of the courses. It is also an undeniable fact that all the experience of the past, all the thoughts and ideals of former intellectual giants, are found in books. However, we would point out to the man who thanks Amherst only for four years in which to read and "mope", the works of Ralph Waldo Emerson. Particularly his essay on "The American Scholar." In this masterpiece of profound thought, delivered before the Harvard Phi Beta Kappa Society, Emerson says: "Books are the best things, well used; abused, among the worst. What is the right use? What is the one end, which all means go to affect? They are for nothing but to inspire. I had better never see a book than to be warped by its attraction clean out of my own orbit, and made a satellite instead of a system. The one thing in the world, of value, is the human soul  They (Books) look backward and not forward. But genius looks forward; the eyes of man are set in his forehead; not in his hindhead; man hopes; genius creates * * * Books are for the scholar's idle times."

If by the "moping" the Amherst sophomore means using books in the Emersonian sense, that of creating new ideals from the foundation of the old, then indeed is he a scholar and a man to whom Amherst will later point with pride. If this is true, the correspondent took a very unfortunate attitude toward his fellows in his letter. We gather from his early remarks that he cannot bring himself to engage in any activity of his community; that he sees as little as possible of his fellow citizens, and even objects to exchanging greetings on the street. If so, we would again advise this man who openly sneers at the axiom, "The more you put into life, the more you will get out of it", to turn to the essay quoted above. In another portion of the paper Emerson says: "There goes in the world a notion that the scholar should be a recluse, a valetudinarian,—as unfit for any handiwork or public labor, as a penknife for an axe. * * * Action is with the scholar subordinate, but it is essential. Without it he is not yet man. Without it thought can never ripen into truth. Whilst the world hangs before the eye as a cloud of beauty, we cannot even see its beauty. Inaction is cowardice, but there can be no scholar without the heroic mind. The preamble of thought, the transition through which it passes from the unconscious to the conscious, is action. Only so much do I know, as I have lived. Instantly we know whose words are loaded with life, and whose are not. * * * Of course, he who has put forth his total strength in fit actions, has the richest return of wisdom."

This sophomore's apparent rebellion against participating in the activities and "actions" of his community, coupled with his snicker at the man who says, "It is the men from the colleges that form the very backbone of our modern civilization", catalogue him as a misfit, a real nonentity. But a nonentity who, unknowingly, has pointed out a great truth.

"He who has put forth his total strength in fit actions, has the richest return of wisdom." "Instantly we know whose words are loaded with life, and whose are not." Modern civilization, which many thinkers believe is rapidly racing to destruction, looks to the colleges for its only salvation;—men, educated in the past, who have been taught to build upon that knowledge the new ideals which fit the present, and who have learned to "put forth their total strength in fit labor." As yet the colleges fail in this great responsibility. They turn out men educated in the past, and taught to work, but by the very fullness of the curriculum, men who can put forth only superficial strength. When the colleges do measure up to the need of civilization, civilization will be safe. A heartening sign is that the colleges are realizing their failure.

CRIMES OF THE PRESS

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said, I could run a newspaper, or all the newspapers, better than the subsidized and incompetent scoundrels who are doing it now. If so, we have never met him. However complete and evident a failure he may be as a business man, a citizen, a husband, and a father, there is one point on which the average man will admit of no doubt whatever—his ability to manage a newspaper. Nevertheless, we venture to believe that even the production of a newspaper is a form of skilled labor, and not so easy as it looks."—"New York Times."

Testimony in Connecticut regarding the need of improvement and larger facilities for the colleges of the state brought out the following: "Joseph W. Alsop of Avon, a trustee of the Connecticut Agricultural College, testified that the college was so cramped for space that it was necessary to house thorough-bred calves in chicken coops."—As reported in the "Hartford Courant."

May we add that under no consideration will we send our cow to Storrs to further its education or intellectual attainments. Look at the reported conditions! However, we look for close competition to be continued in the egg laying contests.

tions must be returned at this time. In case a man is not ready to accept a bid he shall return all invitations and is considered to be free to accept the pledge of any fraternity.

(c) No fraternity man shall speak with the new men from the time the invitations are issued until he arrives at dinner.

(d) The Interfraternity Council shall be in charge of the distribution of invitations which shall be uniform and prepared by the Council.

These rules become effective on their adoption. Under these rules will be conducted the rushing and pledging of every new man at Trinity College.

A Resolution to the effect that:

(a) A man breaking his pledge to any Fraternity would be ineligible to an invitation to join another Fraternity until one college term has expired. And that

(b) It was to the best interests of the college and the Freshmen that off-campus rushing be discouraged, as it was considered detrimental to scholarship, and college life, and as it does not present a true opportunity for judging a crowd.

N. B.—These rushing rules are for the purpose of securing the most favorable conditions under which a Fraternity may select material from the Freshman class and to provide an opportunity for the Freshmen to learn about the Fraternities, to the satisfaction of both. The Council feels sure that each Fraternity will live up to the spirit of these regulations. No man is in any way bound to consider any agreement as binding if these rules have not been kept.

Reasons for Resignation.

Several reasons for its resignation are given by the Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi. It is claimed by this body that the present system of rushing increases the expenses of rushing to an exceedingly great extent, in fact, to an extent which makes proper rushing practically impossible for the size of the various units on the Trinity campus. The expense of providing the new men with meals is cited as an example of this point.

Another point brought out against the existing system is that the two weeks of intensive rushing at the very beginning of the college year is bad scholastically both for upperclassmen and for the new men who are trying to get a good start in their courses.

The representative of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity, on the Interfraternity Council, also argued that under the present rushing agreement the Freshmen are so well treated by the various fraternities during their first two weeks at college, that it becomes necessary to paddle them severely for the remainder of the year, in order to give them the proper training that every Freshman should have. This training, it was intimated, is often a rather disagreeable process for all concerned, and may lead to somewhat brutal treatment of the youngest class, thus causing general dissatisfaction among the entire student body.

It is also maintained by the Trinity Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi that the existing rushing system dampens all enthusiasm on the part of the fraternities to get good men (men who are fraternity material) to come to Trinity. That is, the fraternities tend to remain idle, and wait for the men to come to them instead of going out in search of them. This, they say, was not true under the old cut-throat system of rushing, when more enthusiasm was shown by all the units. The Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi asserts that better results are obtained in getting desirable men to come to Trinity, when each fraternity is working primarily for its own selfish interests as is the case under the old cut-throat system. This chapter admits that there are certain evils connected with the old system, but believes that these evils are less than those of the present (Concluded on page 3.)

ALPHA DELTA PHI RESIGNS.

system. For example, Alpha Delta Phi thinks that all the fraternities on the campus do not strictly adhere to the rules of the present system, and that this places the fraternities that do live up to the agreement at a distinct disadvantage.

Arguments Offered Against Stand of Alpha Delta Phi.

In partial response to the arguments put forth by the local chapter of Alpha Delta Phi which prefers the old cut-throat system of rushing to the present system, it has been noted that the present system discourages downtown rushing, which incidentally causes the greatest expense, and that as a matter of fact there is less and less of downtown rushing by a majority of the fraternities. A great many new men pay for their meals at certain fraternity houses during the two-week period of no pledging, and, consequently, the expense of meals furnished the new men is diminished of course, not entirely but to a large extent.

As rushing is gradually being more and more confined to the campus because of the present system, very little time is taken from the student's studies during the first two weeks of the college year. Furthermore, everything is more or less unsettled at the beginning of the year, and real work in most of the courses does not start for some time after the opening of college.

It has been further argued that a fraternity that fails to live up to the present agreement really admits and acknowledges its own weakness. As soon as the Freshmen arrive at Trinity in the fall, the rushing agreement is explained to them in minute detail by the Interfraternity Council. Any Freshman who, after being made to learn and understand the present rushing rules, secretly accepts a pledge offered, before the two-week period of no pledging has elapsed, by a fraternity failing to obey the rules of the agreement, is usually not wanted by a fraternity that adheres to the rules. Such a Freshman usually gets into a fraternity suited for that type of man,—both are weak and lacking in honor.

The Phi Kappa Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi seems to stand entirely alone in the position it has taken regarding the present rushing agreement. All the other fraternities are apparently in favor of the present system, and are trying to improve it. The present system will continue to remain in effect with certain possible minor changes and improvements.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY SCRAP.

Freshman to come to him, and then seized his unsuspecting victim. However, Jones with one other companion was captured by the Freshmen about five o'clock in the morning. A party of about eight Sophomores happened to meet a party of about eight Freshmen. Jones and one other fearless Sophomore immediately started a skirmish, thinking that they would of course receive the assistance of their fellow classmates. But for some reason the remaining Sophomores decided to withdraw from the scene of action in favor of a more peaceful spot. Although the two deserted Sophomores put up a remarkable battle, they were in the end finally overcome by superior numbers, but it was only after a terrific struggle.

Comparatively early in the evening the Freshmen captured the president of the Sophomore class, Noble, as he was driving his car into a garage. Noble was one of the best line men on the football team last fall, and because of his reputed ability in such an affair as a St. Patrick's Day Scrap the Freshmen decided it would be well to make sure that the mighty Sophomore president took no part in the traditional contest about to be waged. The Freshmen claim that these three Sophomores easily made up for the twelve Freshmen captured by the class of '25.

The Freshmen had their headquarters in the Bondmore Hotel, but the Sophomores failed to discover this fact. This is the first time for several years that a Sophomore class has not learned the location of the rooms rented by the Freshmen for the night preceding the scrap.

Freshmen Use Truck.

At 7.30 Saturday morning the Freshmen learned very definitely the exact nature of the much talked of St. Patrick's Day Scrap. As usual the Sophomores grouped themselves around the designated tree and awaited the onslaught. Instead of coming directly across the campus, the Freshmen marched from the gymnasium toward the main college building. When they reached Williams Memorial, two Freshmen were seen to run around in back of college instead of continuing with the rest of the class. At the time nothing was thought of this, but those two Freshmen were destined to take a very active part in the battle. When the rest of the class reached Northam Towers, they charged the tree and the protecting Sophomores. Soon after the scrap had started a large motor truck drove up from the south campus, and stopped under a projecting limb of the tree. The two above mentioned Freshmen jumped out of the truck and climbed into the tree without difficulty. The truck then moved a short distance away from the scene of the conflict, which immediately began to increase in fury. One of these Freshmen, Nicol by name, displayed a flag with '26 marked on it, while the other Freshman, Murphy, prepared to protect the flag bearer from any ambitious Sophomores who might attempt to ascend the tree. The Sophomores did ascend the tree within a very few minutes, and after a hard struggle Murphy was dislodged from his perch in the tree, but in the process Murphy also pulled one Sophomore down with him. However, from that time on the Sophomores climbed the tree almost at will, in fact at one time there were six Sophomores in the tree. But their ability to climb availed them nothing, as Nicol proved to be an extremely hard person to remove from his position in the tree. In the attempts made to pull him down, two limbs of the tree were broken while Sophomores were dangling on them. Needless to say these unfortunate Sophomores reached the ground without a moment's hesitation. Sophomores seemed to delight in swinging back and forth on Nicol's legs, and then falling to the ground without bringing Nicol with them. In spite of all their efforts, Nicol remained in the tree the required length of time.

But when the scrap was over, Hartt, president of Senate, said it was his opinion that the scrap belonged to the Sophomores because the use of the truck by the Freshmen was illegal. There was immediately a great deal of arguing and for a while it looked as though the scrap was just beginning. Hartt was apparently immovable, and both classes breathlessly awaited the final decision of the Senate which met last Monday night. The Freshmen claimed that there was nothing in the rules against the use of the truck, and that if the truck was illegal Hartt should have ruled out the truck as soon as it appeared on the battle ground instead of allowing the contest to continue. The Freshmen also maintained that a Sophomore who had been placed on parole had entered the scrap for a few seconds. However, the Senate finally decided to call the scrap a draw, and that the Freshman rules are to continue for the rest of the year. The consensus seems to be that the Freshmen really won the scrap, or at least the moral victory belongs to them.

Thus ended another St. Patrick's Day Scrap which is destined to be remembered for many years to come.

"Best Paid Hard Work in the World"

IS the way a JOHN HANCOCK salesman described his work. He is a college graduate and in five years has put himself at the very top of his business.

He never yet has called upon a prospect without a previous appointment. The best life insurance salesmen today work on that plan, making it a business of dignity, such as any worthy and ambitious college graduate can find satisfying to his mental needs, and highly remunerative as well.

The man above quoted is the John Hancock's youngest general agent. This shows what college graduates of the right type can do in this business, how they can build up earning power and at the same time provide for an accumulated competence for the years to come.

Graduation is a vital period in your life and you are liable to hold to the business you start in. It would be well before making a definite decision to inquire into life insurance as a career. Address, "Agency Department."

The High Diving Contests Are Over

THE days of seeing how fast you can chase a shaving cream cap down the drain pipe are past. For here is a cap that can't get lost. It's hinged on. Think what a lot of minutes it will save. No matter how carelessly you handle your shaving apparatus, the cap is on to stay.

With a convenience like this cap you might be tempted to use Williams' Shaving Cream whether you cared much for the cream or not. But once you use Williams' you'll like it as well as you do the cap. For Williams' breaks all records for fast softening of the beard. And more, it is good for the skin—soothes it, keeps it in good condition always.

Test a tube of Williams' by judging it on every point you can think of—speed, lather, comfort. See if you don't think it's noticeably better.

Notice the hinged cap. You can't lose it—and the tube hangs up!

PRIZE CONTESTS PLENTIFUL

Latest Contest Offers First Prize of $250 for Best Name for New Throat Lozenge.

This is the open season for prize contests. During the past month no less than four prize contests have been announced to THE TRIPOD, which has passed them on to its readers. First in importance comes the Laemmle Scholarship, then we received word of a prize essay contest under the auspices of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, next came the announcement of four prizes offered by the Pioneer Writers' Guild of America to young writers and artists whose work has never been published. Last, but by no means least, comes a letter from the Silvodide Chemical Company, offering a prize for a name which adequately describes a new cough lozenge. The letter follows:

"Rev. R. B. Ogilby,
Trinity College.
Dear Sir:

"We are in sympathy with Student Welfare, and we have a proposition that may prove a means of financially aiding students in the college.

"We are offering as a first prize $250.00 in cash for a name for our throat lozenge. The name is to be appropriate and acceptable to our committee.

"We are offering a second prize of $50.00 for a suitable name to be satisfactory to our committee.

"—for the Throat."

"For Cough, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, and Coryza."

"The contest is to remain open until May 1, 1923. The announcement of the winners of these prizes will be published July 1, 1923.

"The lozenge has wonderful medicinal value in instantly allaying cough. It will promptly relieve Tonsillitis, Pharyngitis, and Laryngitis (hoarseness) and a cold in the head (Coryza). This formula was devised in the Medical Laboratory of the University of Pennsylvania by two Professors. The product is perfectly harmless and does not contain narcotics.

"We enter the field occupied by other lozenges such as Life Savers, etc. Our aim is to market a superior product, because we believe the public is receptive for a real and exclusive lozenge for the throat."

Your very truly,
ROBERT TUTTLE,
SILVODIDE CHEMICAL COMPANY

In looking over these aforementioned contests, this one strikes us as being the best of the lot. Just think, not only can you win a prize, but you can get on a trolley car anywhere in this broad dry (?) land and say to your companion, "See that card up there? I thought up that name." The tradition is one that can easily be handed down to your posterity as long as trolleys run. Certainly the contest should have a number of entrants from Trinity.

DR. AND MRS. ROGERS REPORTED IMPROVED

Will Return from Bowling Green, Ky., During Early Part of May.

Word has been received from Bowling Green, Kentucky, to the effect that both Professor Charles Edwin Rogers and Mrs. Rogers are much improved.

Mrs. Rogers is recuperating from a severe attack of pneumonia, while the professor is suffering from a general run-down and overworked condition.

It had been hoped by his friends that Professor Rogers would be able to engage in some original writing and study while on his year of absence, but his physical condition has warranted rest only.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will return to Hartford some time after the first of May. Until then their home is being occupied by Professor and Mrs. C. A. Weeks.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR UNPUBLISHED WORK OF WRITERS AND ARTISTS

The Pioneer Writers' Guild of America, 9 Charles Street, New York City, will award prizes amounting to $600.00 to writers and artists whose work has never been published. The award will be divided as follows: Four prizes of $150.00 each for the best short story, poem, play and cartoon. This contest closes June 30, 1923. For rules, address the Guild.

BRIGHT STUDENTS PREFER EACH OTHER.

Bright students marry bright students and stupid students marry stupid students, according to findings at the University of Washington. The study was made from reports of 200 married graduates by the psychology department. There is, however, no correlation in intelligence between couples at a dance, according to the report, because a fellow, does not choose a dancing partner on account of her intelligence.

THRILLED?

YOU bet he is! He's making a tremendous hit! She has just told him that he has hair like Rudy Valentino's. But he doesn't know whether to pretend that it came that way or confess that he did it with his little bottle of "Vaseline" Hair Tonic. He owes a lot of his manly beauty to that bottle. "Vaseline" Hair Tonic promotes the growth of the hair and keeps the scalp in the healthiest condition. At all drug stores and student barber shops.
